

UNIVERSITY OF UTAH
COLLEGE OF NURSING

Full-Time Tenure Track Positions

We are pleased to announce the opening of full-time, tenure track faculty positions. We seek innovative and energetic candidates with earned doctorates in nursing or related fields that can make a substantial contribution to our research mission and educational programs. Candidates with expertise conducting health disparities research, work with diverse and under-represented groups as well as experience working with students from diverse backgrounds are encouraged. Opportunities exist for a joint appointment with the University of Utah Huntsman Cancer Institute - a National Cancer Institute-Designated Cancer Center.

Established in 1948, The College of Nursing has a long and distinguished history of excellence in nursing and gerontology education, research and practice. The College awards baccalaureate degrees to traditional and second-degree students as well as registered nurses. Graduate education offered by the college of nursing includes the Masters degree, Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) and PhD. We also offer certificates and a Masters degree in Gerontology. Programs are accredited by CCNE.

The College is an integral part of the Health Sciences Center, which consists of the University Health Care system, Eccles Health Sciences Library, the School of Medicine, the Colleges of Health, Pharmacy and Nursing and several institutes. The University of Utah is a research intensive environment, with a Carnegie Foundation classification as a RU/VH: Research Universities (very high research activity).
