RWJF Invites Research Proposals on Disparities Issues

RWJF will consider projects of up to $75,000 with a one-year time frame that address one or more of five key issues:

1. What is known about the quality of care provided by the hospitals, physicians and community clinics that deliver the majority of care to diverse patient populations?
2. Is health information technology (HIT) a promising intervention for reducing racial and ethnic disparities in health care?
3. What differences in quality of care exist for Hispanic/Latino sub-ethnic groups, American Indians and Alaska Natives, and other sub-ethnic groups such as Vietnamese, Hmong or other Asian subgroups?
4. While some researchers continue to document disparities in care, others have found decreased, declining or a complete absence of racial and ethnic disparities in some types of quality of care indicators. How do these findings fit into the context of the wider disparities literature?
5. How does patient-centered care relate to better clinical outcomes?
